The Latvian Sufi community has been established in 2011 with the registration of the School of Mevlana Dervishes (Jalal Al-Din Rumi) in Riga. Parallel to the explicitly religious activities (zikr, meditations, lectures, discourses about Sufism, pilgrimages to Sufi holy places in India and Turkey), a quite wide spectre of cultural events are taking place in the community, such as jazz improvisations, picture exhibitions, exhibitions of guest musicians from Iran, the concerts of classical music including the string quartet and the leading Latvian National Opera House vocalists. Russian and in lesser extent Latvian language are used by the community members consisting from Latvian born persons, as well as immigrants on their way to be integrated into the Latvian society. Therefore the community can be a considered as a melting pot where youth of different cultural, ethnical and political background and therefore with different historical memories meets in specific religious framework. The community is part of the focus group interviewed by the MYPLACE researchers of Daugavpils University from 7th Framework Programme in order to find out how the community participation reshapes the impact of difficult collective memories, and how it influences the youth civic participation.
